

Misery

Damn girl... I'll tell you what's wrong with me, it's this new version of you that you try to be.

What happened to the girl that I gave it all to, have you seen her? She kind of looks just like you

The only difference is the one inside of her shell, she looks like an angel but she puts me through hell.

I gave you one chance, two chance three chance four, and all I ever saw was you walk out the door.

I could beg you, or hey, better yet I could plead, but at the end of the day it's not me that you need.

You need to see what else is out there? Well hey, that's alright. Its dark out in the world so I'll give you my light.

This boyfriend you got, he'll get drunk and he'll slip up. You know how guys get at the bottom of that cup.

But the way I see it is there aint nobody like me. I'll stay true to myself it doesn't matter who might see.

I gave you my heart and the rest of me too, I'm sure it's still stuck there, up under your shoe.

From when you stomped it down into the ground that you stand on, you lost the one guy you could always depend on.

The one that stood by you through this shit and that shit, the one in your heart, somewhere in the blackness.

Shit, Ill be alright I got two feet to stand on, but how will you stand up, when your new mans gone?

You might turn around and realize that you miss me, but then it will hit you, just like it hit me.

People, they change with no reason or warning, no matter the weather it could be sunshine or storming.

There's the good ones, yes, the ones that stood by you, through the love and the blood and the shit that blew by you.

Now, I'm not a prophet, no I'm more of a poet, you'll think I was right and right after you'll know it.

We had something good, no better yet something great, you had someone that loved you and all you gave him was hate.

You'll come running back to where you think that you might find, the person who loved you and things will be just fine.

But you can run all you want, girl I'm long gone. See, this isn't a movie, it's a modern day love song.